Critical Thinking: An Ethical Approach to Social Work Practice Psycho-Social and Cultural Aspects of Pain Management

This workshop is CE approved for 5 hours of Social Work Ethics AND one hour of pain/pain symptom management.

Presenters:

Dr. Roger Manela, LMSW, ACSW - School Social Worker Detroit Public Schools

Pamela Manela, LMSW, ACSW - Retired School Social Worker Southfield Public School, Member of State of Michigan Board of Social Work

Ethical issues in social work practice will be described and discussed using a model of critical thinking to help social workers identify and avoid biased and narrow perspectives that could lead to ethical problems in social work practice. This presentation will help sensitize participants to ethical issues in social work practice and how to resolve ethical dilemmas that could arise. It also will describe processes for mitigating ethical problems and procedures used to investigate and deal with ethical complaints. The Social Work Code of Ethics will be examined, with special attention paid to areas of ethical social work practice that are particularly relevant to school social workers.

In addition, the psycho-social and cultural aspects of pain and pain management will be discussed from a perspective that is especially relevant to social work practice.
